Thanks for letting us see this ahead of time. I don't know the background of all the numbers but the press release sends two messages: 1) this Administration is looking out for Alaskans and 2) we are willing to work with the companies. Both great messages leading into this week. Tom

Very warm and friendly gathering this morning. Pastor Brad talked about their school and how they bring in kids from the Bush, put them up with a church family, and then they go to the Birchwood Christian School. Sounds like they have about ten villages represented. We can talk about some of their challenges later, but here's another group with a heart for the villages. Good to see

I haven't read it yet, but I will soon. I'm happy to hear he continues to convey the right msg-all the good things going on in ak. his last article about you was in newsweek this morning.

Just getting back to jnu. It's cold here, too! Have fun in petersville!

Nice article about Leo! Man, that Steve Quinn sure is able to capture a ton of information and present it so well for the public's understanding. It seems he does have a great sense of where we're going, relays that, but sticks with the facts in doing so! How refreshing...

Hope you're feeling well and rested.

We're snowmaching in Petersville tomorrow for Track's last ride before he returns to Georgia, so can't make Benson's shin dig... I apologize for that bc I know you guys are going to have a blast!

Great message by Galvin in today's adn. Alaskans need that assurance that the doom/gloom rhetoric spewed by some can be tempered with our reasonable assessment of the environment: that AK is extremely attractive (bc of the points Pat makes in today's article)... It goes along with the Lt. Governor's point made about hope and opportunity this administration wants to, and can, provide Alaskans.

Good timing with the interview, as recently it's seemed a positive message has been silenced, compared to industry spokespersons' negative talk.

Thanks, all! And this will be an outrageously good week with good announcements for Alaskans!
